2021 University Interdisciplinary Colloquium w/ Dr. Sharlissa Moore

"Interdisciplinary energy research: Needs, challenges, and pathways forward"

Dr. Sharlissa Moore
James Madison College

9-17-2021
12PM-1PM EDT via Zoom

Zoom Link: <https://msu.zoom.us/j/96411904159>
Passcode: msuc4i

With climate change mitigation being an urgent need across the United States, interest has increased in interdisciplinary collaboration across engineering, social science, and the humanities. This talk will outline the reasons this collaboration is needed and then describe several examples of interdisciplinary energy research on community solar projects and residential battery storage. Both projects were also transdisciplinary as they involved community members, private company, and government. The talk will the overview the institutional and disciplinary challenges that need to be addressed to further interdisciplinary research collaboration on energy.

Announcing the C4I Affiliate Faculty Program!

The MSU Center for Interdisciplinarity (C4I) is committed to creating an inclusive community for interdisciplinarians at MSU. Traditionally, we have done this through a variety of programmatic offerings, but in 2021, C4I will be adding to our offerings by establishing an Affiliate Faculty program. It is our hope that this program provides a place for interdisciplinarians on campus to network, find peer mentors, share resources, and develop collaborations.

Who is Eligible?

C4I's new Affiliate Faculty program will include members of campus who engage in interdisciplinary research, teaching, outreach, and administration and who are interested in building a community of interdisciplinarians at MSU. Affiliate Faculty may fall under a range of employment categories, including tenure-track faculty, non-tenure track faculty, academic specialists, postdocs, and staff.

How to Apply

An application to the C4I Affiliate Faculty Program includes a letter of interest in joining the Affiliate Faculty (no more than 1 page) and a current CV. The deadline to apply is October 1, 2021. Please send all materials as one pdf to c4i@msu.edu. For the inaugural round of applications, C4I leadership will review applications and welcome new Affiliate Faculty into the community by October 15, 2021.

Expectations and Benefits

Affiliate Faculty are invited to attend C4I activities, such as the University Interdisciplinary Colloquium, Transdisciplinary Graduate Fellowship Program Symposium, Interdisciplinary Write-Ins, and other workshops and events. Affiliate Faculty are expected to attend a once-a-semester mixer (to be held virtually 2021-2022). This year, you must also be an Affiliate Faculty member to be eligible for the new C4I Seed Grant Program (coming in October 2021). Affiliate Faculty are also welcome to highlight their achievements or advertise events and classes through the C4I newsletter and social media channels.

We Need YOUR Help: MSU C4I Website Survey

We here at MSU C4I are working on updating our website. If you have a few minutes to spare, please take our survey which can be found here.

Survey Request from The Institute for Cyber-Enabled Research

The Institute for Cyber-Enabled Research is conducting a survey to inform our understanding of the MSU community's future research computing needs, which will inform strategic decisions regarding investments in this area. This survey can be found at this link, and all community members who complete it will receive a complimentary gift as a token of our appreciation. The survey closes on September 24th.

We would appreciate feedback from both current users of research computing services as well as community members who are considering using more computation in their research in the future. We are particularly interested in feedback from community members coming from subject areas that have not traditionally been heavy users of research computing.
