Toolbox Dialogue Initiative Creates New Service Center

The Toolbox Dialogue Initiative (TDI) Center, housed within MSU’s College of Arts & Letters, is a one-of-a-kind organization that provides philosophically based capacity-building services to research and practice groups locally, nationally, and internationally. The TDI Center uses dialogue-based workshops to help members of teams, larger organizations, and communities communicate more effectively with one another and work through conflict in a respectful way.

Imagine MSU is a funding opportunity for graduate students across MSU to implement their own creative community-building project. For more information and a link to the Toolbox Dialogue Initiative’s Website, visit https://tdi.msu.edu.

The MSU Center for Interdisciplinarity presents a Visiting Faculty Colloquium. "The Limits of Sociolinguistics in Current Research and Practice" by Dr. Michael O'Rourke and Associate Directors Dr. Edgar Cardenas, Dr. Chet McLeskey, and Dr. Marisa Rinkus, TDI Center uses dialogue-based research and practice groups locally, nationally, and internationally.
